This Week's Letter Focus: Bb

Due to the lack of snow, we did not, in fact, get to build a snowman. We intend to do that and have hot cocoa at some point. We will let you know and send a note for outdoor play clothes when we actually have snow!!!!

Activities and Projects

If I lived in a snow globe project (writing and art piece)
Finish Katy and the Big Snow art project
Lacing Snowman project

Writing Center

Various scraps and supplies with glue sticks and scissors for making own art

Math Center Games:

Snowman tally marks
Counting snowballs
Winter scene counting
Snowman button/number match
Snowman color patterning
(Games are intended to improve patterning, one to one correspondence, and numeral recognition)

Library Center:

Matching upper and lower case letter snowmen

Morning Routine Independence

It is the time of year where we would like to see your child develop, or continue to develop morning routine independence. We need your assistance to for this to happen.

Beginning next week, we ask that you allow your child to enter the classroom on their own. You saying goodbye at the classroom door allows your child to attempt all of the steps on their own or with help from a peer. Social cues from peers and prompts from the teacher will help them gain this independence. An adult will always be available to tie shoes and help if necessary.

Thank you for your help in this matter and for helping your child take this next step in school.
